DESCRIPTION

Many factors have led employers to adopt diversity and inclusion (D&I) initiatives, including changing demographics, negative incidents in the news, and a lack of diverse employee representation. Join Shafeeqa Giarratani and Kimya Johnson, co-chairs of Ogletree Deakins' Diversity and Inclusion Practice Group, for insight into the design, implementation, and enhancement of D&I initiatives in the workplace. The presenters will address factors to consider and steps to take when initiating a D&I program, such as assessing current policies and practices, identifying crisis areas, and analyzing data on your workforce. This session will also focus on legal issues related to numerical diversity goals and examples of legally compliant programming.
