DESCRIPTION

On May 12, 2022, the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) and the U.S. Department of Justice issued its first guidance on the use of software, algorithms, and artificial intelligence (AI) to make hiring and other employment decisions. The guidance focuses on the risk that the use of AI and algorithmic processes to make employment decisions could result in unlawful discrimination against applicants and employees with disabilities. Our speakers will discuss the guidance's key provisions and best practices that employers may want to consider to ensure that these tools do not disadvantage individuals with disabilities in ways that may violate the Americans with Disabilities Act.
