DESCRIPTION

As the pandemic winds down in Canada and employees return to the office, employers face a new set of challenges. Join us for a discussion of recent legal developments affecting workplaces north of the border, including an update on the state of COVID-19 measures, legal considerations for employers reopening offices, and compliance issues arising from remote workforces. In addition, the speakers will address new legislative initiatives throughout Canada, including measures on:

- workers' right to disconnect;
- electronic monitoring;
- restrictions on noncompetition clauses;
- mandatory on-site naloxone kits at high-risk workplaces; and
- work from home arrangements.
