DESCRIPTION

The 2020 political races have commenced, and nowhere is this felt more acutely than in Washington, D.C. Regulators in federal agencies are racing to tie up their respective agendas, and high-level personnel changes at the U.S. Department of Labor, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and the National Labor Relations Board will likely affect regulatory plans and enforcement protocols. Join Jim Plunkett, Ogletree Deakins' Senior Government Relations Counsel, as he offers insight into what to expect on the employment and labor law front and addresses how these political dynamics will affect the workplace. This session will also provide a rundown of developments in Congress and in the White House.
