DESCRIPTION

President Joe Biden's actions since his first day in office show that he plans to fulfill his pledge to lead one of the most union-friendly administrations in U.S. history. With the Biden administration supporting their efforts, unions have wasted little time trying to reinvigorate the labor movement and reverse the declining trends in represented workers. In this webinar, the speakers will address union actions, including new organizing tactics conceived during the COVID-19 pandemic, changes in how the next generation of workers views unions, and the potential seismic legislation employers may see from the U.S. Congress in the form of the Protecting the Right to Organize (PRO) Act of 2021.
