DESCRIPTION

As more states move to legalize marijuana, employers are faced with complex and wide-ranging workplace issues created by the growing patchwork of federal, state, and local laws. While some employers may view marijuana legalization as simply a drug-testing issue, laws governing marijuana cover a wide variety of topics, including statutory and regulatory compliance, disability discrimination, workplace safety and health, government contractor status, workers' compensation, employee privacy, and public policy concerns.

This webinar will address some of the most frequently asked questions (FAQs) that employers raise regarding marijuana and the workplace. The webinar will then transition to an open forum where the speaker will answer questions posed by attendees throughout the presentation.
