DESCRIPTION

Although many employers in the healthcare industry have continued to operate through the pandemic, many have done so with reduced workforces or scaled-down operations. Now that more employees are back in the workplace, healthcare employers face a variety of issues, including rising COVID-19 infection rates and a continued uptick in U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) inspections and citations. Join us for a discussion of recent inspection trends, the latest guidance for the healthcare industry from OSHA and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and the best practices for compliance.
