DESCRIPTION

The Trump administration and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention continue to say that we are likely to see a vaccine for COVID-19 soon—maybe as early as this fall, or at the latest, sometime this winter. The availability of a vaccine will be welcomed, to say the least. However, what workplace safety and health concerns and related legal issues will a vaccine pose for employers? Join this week's OSHA Hour webinar for an introduction to and discussion of these timely issues.
