DESCRIPTION

No matter the industry, location, or size of a workplace, the threat of violence against employees is real. Recent tragic incidents of workplace violence have reminded many employers to reevaluate whether they have effective policies and practices in place to protect their workers. Join our speakers for a timely discussion on key workplace violence prevention strategies for employers. The discussion will include identifying the early warning signs, understanding the symptoms and behaviors of individuals who may be escalating toward violent conduct, and outlining practical steps organizations can take to minimize the risk of violence in the workplace.
