

Texas City Joins Growing Ranks of Cities Raising the Minimum Wage to $15 Dollars

December 27, 2016

Taking its cue from other, larger cities, San Marcos, Texas, recently voted to raise the minimum wage to $15 dollars per hour for businesses applying for tax breaks and others incentives to build or expand in the city. In addition to the higher wage, businesses must also offer all employees and their dependents benefits equal to those offered to full-time employees.

Taking its cue from other, larger cities, San Marcos, Texas, recently voted to raise the minimum wage to $15 dollars per hour for businesses applying for tax breaks and others incentives to build or expand in the city. In addition to the higher wage, businesses must also offer all employees and their dependents benefits equal to those offered to full-time employees. The San Marcos City Council saw requiring the higher pay rate as a way businesses could return the favor of receiving tax incentives to the local economy. This new law applies only to future businesses seeking economic development incentives, and not companies already doing business in San Marcos. San Marcos joins the ranks of cities such as Los Angeles, Seattle, San Francisco, and Washington, D.C. that require a “living wage.”

Key Takeaways

Businesses seeking tax incentives to build or expand in San Marcos need to be prepared to pay a higher minimum wage and offer benefits to all of employees. This trend is likely to continue in other cities across the nation.

RELATED ARTICLES

The logo for Ogletree Deakins, featuring the company name in white serif font on a blue square background.

Ogletree
Deakins

November 17, 2022

DOL Sued Over FOIA
Request for Contractors'
EEO-1 Reports

January 25, 2023

OFCCP's Scheduling List
Targets Contractors That
Didn't Certify in OFCCP's
Contractor Portal

RELATED WEBINAR

February 9, 2023

I-9 Compliance Series: The Basics, Part 1—What Does
Good Faith Compliance
Mean? Contractors'...

RELATED SEMINAR

February 16 | Miami, FL

Employment Law Briefing

Browse More Insights

PODCASTS

SEMINARS

WEBINARS

Sign up to receive emails about new developments and upcoming programs.

SIGN UP NOW

